

Background of JAECA Policy

Once Japan had high quality of culture and education, therefore, could have rare ideas of ethics and morals and noble-minded soul.

However, after the World War II, while remarkable economic growth has been attained, precious culture and education---which was a source of Japanese spirits---had collapsed. Furthermore, Japanese economy is also getting worse in recent years. The main cause of the failure is that Japan pursued economy too much.

As a result, it's compensation is too large and it has come to the place those recovery is impossible any longer.

Just after the East Japan Earthquake, disaster victims helped each other mutually, and it seemed that a once Japanese collaboration and the soul of harmony revived, so that the world was surprised.

Unfortunately, people who run to materialistic desires or power do not reflect themselves regardless of the government and a private sector. However, the Japanese chose the representative of the government and we should notice our responsibility.

JAECA reflects earnestly out of the history of these Japan, and make into the major premise to greatly profit by the teachings learned from there for development of future African countries.

What does development of a country mean?

As the teachings obtained from failure of Japanese show, education is the most important component for development of a country. However, in order to perform high quality education, the economy supporting it is required.

In other words, education and economy should be both wheels and should be both developed. If only economy goes far ahead, it will repeat a fault of Japan, namely people tend to run to only worldly desires.

To make matters worse, if the person who pursues immediate avarice occupies a country, there is a danger that a country will be ruined.

Furthermore, it is the culture which should be a basis of development of education and economy. Growth of culture lead to development of education and economy.

The culture which the samurai who lasted and has led the state in Japan once has cultivated is Bushin culture.

The main spiritual elements were faith, responsibility, union, collaboration, and harmony which were based on ethics and morality.

With these soul, training of martial art were strenuously performed by Samurai in everyday life in case of emergency.

Since the Samurai's children studied ethics and morality besides martial art training, they rendered loyalty for the country and supported preparedness to work at the risk of their life.

In this way, the state by a Samurai was maintained about 700 years, furthermore after that, the state where a large revolution still incomparable in the world called the Meiji Restoration was achieved had been established.

Therefore, we are sure that our exhausting Japan should go back to our origin of essence of education and culture.

JAECA believes that justice will be certainly attained if we inherit the essence of those to Africa which has an infinite possibility and if Japan and Africa cooperate mutually with faith and responsibility.

JAECA is apprehensive that Japanese economy, education, and culture will continue to exhaust in next decade. However, Since Africa is the origin of human being and history of the world, JAECA is convinced that Africa is the last hope which has a possibility to lead world to real peace and growth of human.

JAECA believes that once our aim at development of education and economy of Africa and mutual culture growth has been achieved by the soul of coexistence, it will be a certain driving force of revitalization of Japan.
